

2020 Bay Area Neuroendocrine Tumor (NET) Conference for Patients and Caregivers

Sunday, March 8, 2020, 8:30 am – 4:00 pm

Arrillaga Alumni Center, Stanford University; 326 Galvez St, Stanford, CA 94305

- Patients, caregivers and family members interested in learning more about NETs are invited to join us for a day of information and support.
- The day will feature internationally renowned Stanford and UCSF NET experts, along with other well-known NET specialists who will speak about imaging, PRRT, surgery, current clinical trials and strategies for “living well” (for both patients and care-providers).
- The conference is appropriate for newly diagnosed patients, as well as those who have been living with a NET for an extended time.
- In addition to general sessions, we will have smaller, disease-specific breakout groups.

There is no cost to attend this conference (includes light breakfast, lunch, snacks, and free parking).

Presented by the Stanford Cancer Center and NorCal CarciNET Community in collaboration with UCSF Helen Diller Family Comprehensive Cancer Center, and with generous support from UCSF Health and industry partners.

Co-Hosts: NorCal CarciNET Community and UCSF

Registration ends on March 1, 2020.
Visit <https://norcalcarcinet.org/2020>

Faculty Include:

- Keynote Presenter: Rebecca Katz, MS Educator, Culinary translator, and Author of “Cancer Fighting Kitchen”
- Special Guest: Lloyd Minor, MD, Dean of the Stanford University School of Medicine
- Pamela Kunz, MD, Stanford
- Justin Annes, MD, Stanford
- Carina Aparici, MD, Stanford
- Emily Bergsland, MD, UCSF
- Matt Gubens, MD, UCSF
- Electron Kebebew, MD Stanford
- Greta Macaire, RD, UCSF
- Sukhmani Padda, MD, Stanford
- Neha Shah, RD, Stanford/UCSF
- Shagufta Shaheen MD Stanford
- Theresa Wittenberg, PA, Stanford
- Josh Mailman, NorCal CarciNET Community
- Additional speakers to be announced

Stanford
MEDICINE

UCSF Helen Diller Family
Comprehensive
Cancer Center